The evolution of gender roles within the tech industry has seen significant shifts, but historical imbalances persist – our round table will reveal top insights and advice from women in tech in the Middle East.

In the heart of the Middle East, the UAE's stature as a technology hub is always growing. What's even more remarkable is the growing influence of women in this historically male-dominated industry. Ten impressive women from across the tech industry will come together during the week of GITEX Global, to discuss how they entered the field of technology and how the industry can encourage more women and girls across the MENA region to step into what is still a sector with a gender imbalance.
